

“One lady told me she would rather die from COVID-19 than from hunger.

Five days ago, thirteen children came to my house asking for food.”

Bishop Given Guala, Kondoa, Tanzania

This year has demonstrated more than ever the power of building capacity in the global Church to respond swiftly and effectively in the face of extraordinary challenges, whilst continuing our core mission.

Your generosity has made it possible for us to deliver practical help, hope and love during the coronavirus pandemic across the Communion; together, in unity.

Times of Crisis

Helping the Church tackle challenges in the midst of unexpected events.

The Anglican Communion Fund supports Anglican communities worldwide in their mission to live and share Christ's love.

Underpinning the ministry of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the ACF strives to enable the Church to be a source of stability, including working with global structures.

We do this through our support in:

- Representation
- Times of Crisis

In 2019-20, the FACF and ACF committed over £469,000 to helping 39 projects spanning 19 countries, as well as funding Anglican representatives whose advocacy roles have a global reach. A further £280,000 was released in 2020 as emergency COVID funds.

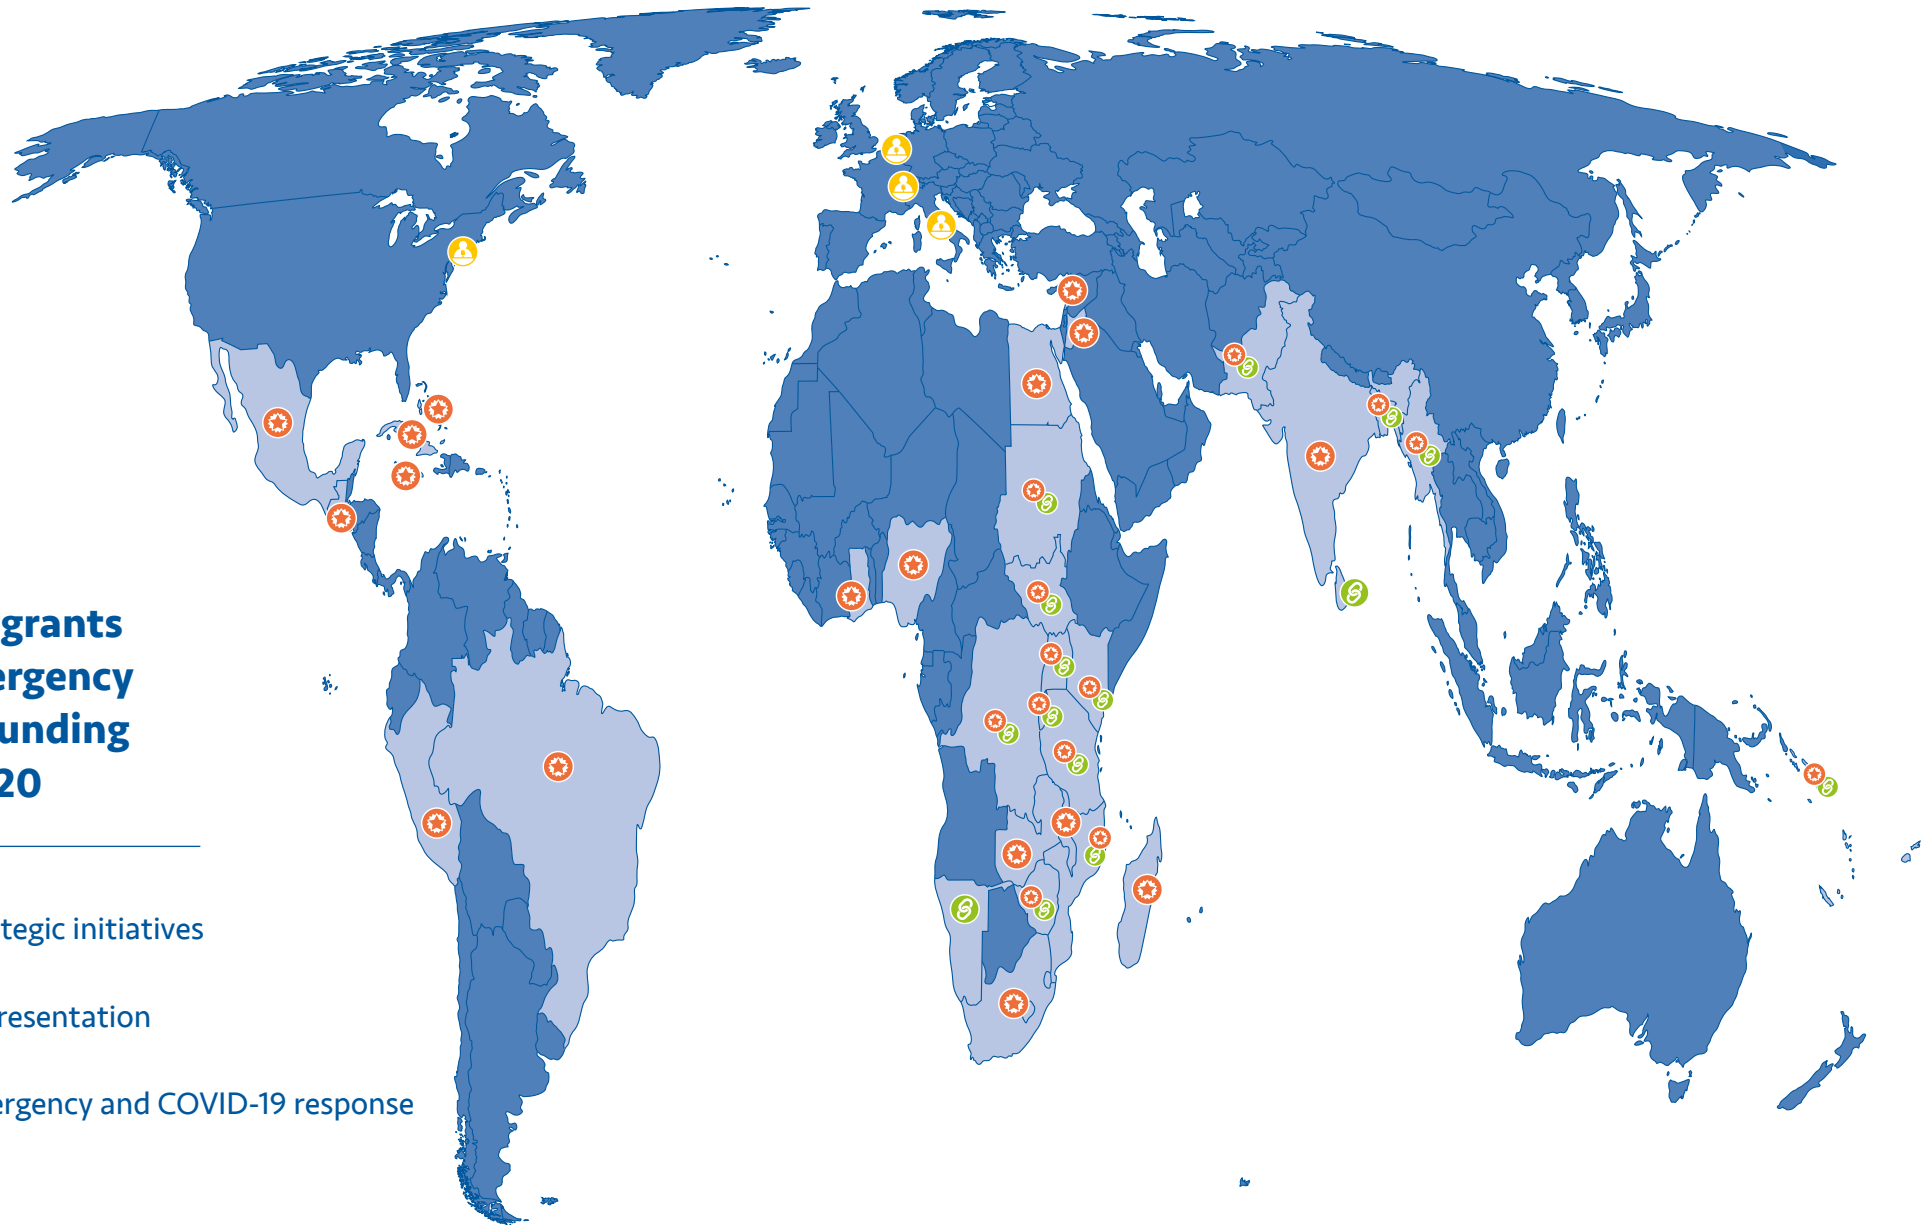

In this time of crisis around the world, our cross-section of support could not have been more critical in hearing and effectively responding to the range of needs across the communion.

The power of the ACF's global reach and impact lies in its ability to swiftly support needs across 185 countries. Through a trusted Church network that operates at the heart of communities, we can understand individual needs and respond appropriately.

The Anglican Communion Fund in times of COVID-19

The emergence of the COVID-19 pandemic has pushed many churches into crisis mode.

The health impact has been devastating in many places. The economic impact has been far more crippling where economies fuelled by day labourers have shut down, leaving swathes of populations without any income.

The pandemic has had a disproportional impact on the poor. It has been exacerbated by poverty, conflict, migration and refugees, and failure of the state. It has aggravated issues such as gender-based violence and human trafficking.

The demands upon churches to lead and serve are enormous; the capacity building work of the ACF is more important now than ever.

We are grateful to our supporters who have enabled us to respond to this crisis so far and we are thankful in anticipation of ongoing help to continue hearing and responding to those in need.

COVID-19 RESPONSE FOCUS: BRAZIL

Coronavirus has spread like wildfire:
over 6 million cases & more than 170,000 deaths.

The Anglican Episcopal Church of Brazil was granted £8,000 by the ACF to aid its community response to COVID-19, both in the form of rapid immediate relief and long-term support and capacity building.

Across the country, impoverished families and the increased number of homeless people (caused by unemployment due to the pandemic) were provided with a range of necessities to ease suffering, according to their individual urgent needs; food baskets, hot meals for the vulnerable, distribution of cleaning products and PPE kits, and even chickens for self-sustainability. 'Basic Baskets' providing protein, hygiene kits, mask and alcohol gel were given to those identified in immediate need.

But this story is far from over. The relief response continues, seeking the vulnerable and bringing practical necessity and help, wrapped in the hope and love of God.
